NINETEEN DROWN AFTER WAVES SINK SAND BOAT IN LAKE

Woman Passenger and 18 Members of Crew Are Swept to Death in 50-
Mile Gale; Seven Men
Rescued Early Sunday.

PUMPS MANNED, BUT TO NO AVAL

Lifeboats Are Upset by Heavy Waves; Accident
Occurred Saturday Night
14 Miles From Cleveland

CLEVELAND, Oct. 18.—(AP)—
Eighteen crew members and a woman passenger of the Canadian ship,
Sand Merchant, drowned last night when the 252-foot sand-sucker rolled over in a 50-mile gale which swept across treacherous Lake Erie
14 miles northwest of Cleveland.

Many of the sailors desperately clung to two capsized lifeboats for hours before sliding off to their death. Seven men were rescued at about 8 a. m. today by two freighters en route to Lake Erie ports.

Ship officials told a graphic story of 20-foot waves driving through open hatches into a 3,000-ton load of sand.
Those saved were:

Jack Meuse, deck engineer, Yarmouth, Nova Scotia.
William Gifford, crane operator, New Castle, New Brunswick.
Fred Morse, crane operator, address unknown.

Martin White, second engineer, Cape Breton, N. S.
Captain Graham MacLennan, Cape Tormentine, N. B.
Herman Dault, dragline operator, Victoria Harbor, Ont.

John L. Ideson, deck hand, Fort Williams, Ont.
Meuse, the deck engineer, gave the following list of those apparently lost:

Bernard Drinkwater, first mate, Port Stanley, Ont.
Pat Bourrie, second mate, Victoria Harbor, Ont.
Dan Bourrie, wheelman, brother of Pat.

Amos Dault, wheelman, Victoria Harbor, brother of Herman.
Joseph Dault, pump engineer, Victoria Harbor, also brother of Herman.
Walter McInnes, engineer, Bay de Vin Beach, N. B.

Sanford Gray, third engineer, Victoria Harbor.
Nicholas McCarthy, oiler, address unknown.
Roland DeMille, oiler, Rexton, N. B.

Harold Cannon, fireman, Cape Tormentine.
Peter Daigle, fireman, Rexton, N. B.
Two firemen, names unknown, died here for the L. & N. railway, died this morning at the Marietta hospital from gunshot wounds said by police to have been inflicted by his son, Newell Black, 28, during a shooting affray in a beer parlor late Saturday night.

The son is being held in the Cobb county jail for grand jury action on recommendation of the coroner's jury. Surviving the father are his wife, three daughters and three sons. Funeral services will be delayed pending the arrival of relatives.

Marietta Man Slain, Son, 28, Is Arrested

MARIETTA, Ga., Oct. 18.—John David Black, 68, veteran yardmaster here for the L. & N. railway, died this morning at the Marietta hospital from gunshot wounds said by police to have been inflicted by his son, Newell Black, 28, during a shooting affray in a beer parlor late Saturday night.

The son is being held in the Cobb county jail for grand jury action on recommendation of the coroner's jury. Surviving the father are his wife, three daughters and three sons. Funeral services will be delayed pending the arrival of relatives.

Coast Forest Fires Are Under Control

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 18.—(AP)—
Smoking forest fires which took three lives, scorched several towns and caused damage which may reach the $1,000,000 mark in northern California were reported under control today.

Cool weather, scattered rains and high humidity combined to aid hundreds of fire fighters in bringing the scores of blazes within fire lines.

Twenty truck loads of fighters relieving tired crews which had battled the fire in the Westville area of the Tahoe national forest since Friday, reported the blaze had been subdued. The flames burned over an area of 50 square miles and consumed $350,000 worth of lumber.

M. B. Pratt, state forester, said surveys disclosed fires in Calaveras, Tuolumne and Madera counties also were under control. The Madera fire burned over 14,000 acres, much of it in the Sierra national forest.

JUDGE G. F. GOBER DIES IN MARIETTA

Former Head of Lumpkin
Law School and Legal Author Succumbs at 85.

MARIETTA, Ga., Oct. 18.—Judge George F. Gober, 85, former head of the Lumpkin Law School at the University of Georgia, died at his home here today.

He was a member of the S. A. E. fraternity. He was appointed a trustee of the university in 1889 and served until 1925, when he resigned to accept the presidency of the Lumpkin Law School at Athens. He held this post three years. He was professor emeritus at the university.

He was elected solicitor general of the Blue Ridge circuit in 1881, and served until 1889, when he was elected judge of the Blue Ridge circuit. This office he held from 1889 through 1908.

During this period of his long and varied life he acquired extensive real estate interests in Marietta and north Georgia.

Judge Gober found time in the earlier part of his life to take active part in the development of Marietta and Cobb county. He was one of the organizers of what is now the First National Bank of Marietta, in 1887, and was a member of the first board of education elected by city council in 1892, the year when the Marietta public schools were incorporated.

He was later president of the Marietta board of education for a number of years, and was a member of the Cobb County Board of Education.

25 PERSONS DEAD AND MANY INJURED IN ITALIAN 'QUAKE'

Earth Shocks Felt in Northwestern Section of Yugoslavia and Austria;
Property Damage Heavy

VENICE, Italy, Oct. 18.—(AP)—At least 25 persons died and many were injured today in a roaring earthquake which shook northeastern Italy and touched the northwestern section of Yugoslavia and a small section of Austria.

Property damage in the Italian area was extensive and all the dead reported were from that sector.

Venice itself felt the tremor but damage there was slight. Dispatches from Trieste said the Croatian capital of Zagreb and the Croatian city of Lubiano were thrown into panic by the quake which caused moderate damage there.

Fifteen died in the Italian province of Canave di Sacle, among the mountains in the province of Friuli. The earthquake, preceded by a long roar, killed one and injured six at Cornellano.

Several hundred houses, churches and even castles were knocked down by the tremor.

There was panic throughout the province of Carnia Treviso.

Tens of thousands of persons in night clothes rushed into the open and spent the rest of the night outside their homes.

Scores got into automobiles and drove frantically away from the region, some going as far as Venice 120 miles away.

Venice itself felt the shock but there were no casualties here and damage was confined to a few toppled chimneys. Many persons rushed from their homes in Venice, however, and hurried by gondola and motorboat to safety in the Venetian lagoon.

Hundreds of dwellings were reported damaged in the province of Treviso. Many were rendered uninhabitable. Authorities roped off damaged areas in some towns and cities. The quake shivered the northern part of the province.

Told By King To 'Mind Your Own Business'

Here are the two leading dignitaries of the Church of England who, Mayfair society circles say, were angrily told to "mind their own business" by King Edward VIII when they approached the monarch concerning his relations with Mrs. Ernest "Wally" Simpson. At left is the archbishop of York, the Most Rev. William Temple, and at right is the archbishop of Canterbury, the Most Rev. Cosmo Gordon Lang. Both declined to attend a party attended by Mrs. Simpson. Wide World photos.

King Edward Is Given Full Dossier Of U. S. Reports on Simpson Affair

Monarch Reads Press Clippings and Then Leaves for Week of Hunting—Without "Wally"; Protests on Dispatches Seen in Some Quarters.

By VIRGIL PINKLEY.
LONDON, Oct. 18.—(UP)—King Edward today was given a complete dossier of American press accounts of Mrs. Ernest "Wally" Simpson and his relations with the attractive Baltimore-born brunette, who is divorcing her first husband. The king read the clippings and cable reports and then left Buckingham palace by automobile for a shooting party at his Sandringham estate.

Mrs. Simpson, often his guest on holiday excursions, was in seclusion with friends in the country and did not go to Sandringham. No women were invited to the party, despite persistent rumors that the king's American favorite would attend. Guests included the Earls of Harewood and Sefton and a number of members of the king's household staff.

The king's household staff, however, hurried by gondola and motorboat to safety in the Venetian lagoon. Hundreds of dwellings were reported damaged in the province of Treviso. Many were rendered uninhabitable. Authorities roped off damaged areas in some towns and cities. The quake shivered the northern part of the province.

ROOSEVELT GOES TO CAPITAL TODAY; WILL TOUR EAST

President To Start Swing
of New England Tuesday;
Landon Plans To Carry Drive to Pacific.

By The Associated Press.
The political fronts were projected toward the seaboard last night. Governor Landon turning westward for California and President Roosevelt contemplating a tour of New England territory.

The western swing for the Republican nominee will compose only one leg of a long and final major tour before November 3. With California behind him, Governor Landon will journey eastward—with speechmaking stops—to New York and head back to Toledo only in time for the balloting.

Mr. Roosevelt, with a two-night rest-up at his Hyde Park home, left for Washington last night. The capital visit, however, was to be brief. He is to leave Washington Tuesday to stomp Massachusetts, home state of Joseph B. Ely, former Democratic governor of the Bay State and more recently sharp critic of New Deal policies and advocate of Governor Landon.

The Landon program for this week contained engagements for addresses at Los Angeles on Tuesday, Oklahoma City Friday and Indianapolis Saturday. He left Toledo for Albuquerque, N. M., his first stop, last night.

The President plans to go from Washington to Providence, where he is to make a speech Wednesday morning from the back seat of an automobile. That afternoon he plans to speak at Hartford, Conn., after an overnight train trip from Worcester and then go to New Haven, Conn., for lunch. He plans to return to Hyde Park, N. Y., by way of Bridgeport, Norwalk, Stamford and Danbury, Conn.

Friends of Mrs. Simpson say the king showed her "the greatest consideration" after her divorce petition was filed at Ipswich. The exact date the action was filed was not known publicly. It has been reported that the suit was filed just before Mrs. Simpson's departure for the king's Sandringham estate.

British Troops Act In Bombay Rioting

BOMBAY, India, Oct. 18.—(AP)—
British troops were called into action today to suppress mass rioting between Hindus and Moslems stretching into the fourth day.

Arson and looting spread menacingly and 18 truckloads of soldiers were deployed through the streets and the thickly populated native districts to restore order.

Up to last midnight at least 46 persons had been killed and 440 injured in the frequent bloody clashes of Indian factions armed with knives and guns.

Today opened quietly, but roving bands raided shops and homes and started a new wave of incendiary fires.

A Hindu temple near Bhendabazar was burned to the ground. Police rescued a Hindu doctor who was attacked savagely by a crowd of other Hindus when he tried to shelter a Moslem.

The rioting started during the construction of a Hindu place of worship near a mosque.

INSURGENTS MEET LITTLE RESISTANCE IN MAJOR ADVANCE

Swift and Unexpected
Onslaught From South
Nets Four Towns; Loyalists Do Not Stand Up Against Trained Units.

SOCIALIST TROOPS
FLEE IN DISORDER

Now City Can Obtain
Food or Evacuate Only
by Trying To Run Vans
Through Enemy Lines.

WITH SOUTHERN FASCIST
ARMY, Oct. 18.—(AP)—Spanish
Fascists pressing toward Madrid announced today they had cut the last avenue of escape from the capital as Socialist troops fled in disorder before a slashing attack.

Railway connections from Madrid to the south, including the line to Valencia, were severed and the Fascist command said the city was practically isolated from the outside world.

Trucks, which would have to risk capture by the Fascist army, were the only means by which Madrid could bring in food supplies or evacuate citizens, the insurgents said.

To achieve this isolation, the insurgents bombed and occupied two important junctions, Estacion de Alcala and Estacion de Castellon, midway between Toledo and Aranjuez, effectively cutting all rail transportation to and from the capital.

Unexpected Attack.
This attack on Madrid's most vital means of communication was part of a swift and unexpected onslaught from Toledo, which carried Fascist troops more than half way to Illescas—last important city on the Toledo-Madrid highway.

Olas Del Rey and Cabanas de la Sacra were occupied with only spasmodic resistance from government troops, although the very fate of Madrid was at stake. One government bomber which ventured out from Getafe airport was shot down.

Three columns participated in the Fascist attack.

The new formation now provides a right flanking movement for attack on important Navalcarnero and contributes another step to the gradually narrowing front against Madrid.

In the march toward Illescas, the Fascist cavalry column occupied Moejon and Villaseca de la Sagra. Moorish cavalrymen, standing in their stirrups and riding at full gallop, completely encircled a large group of fleeing Socialist troops.

This correspondent saw Madrid defenders fleeing across roads and fields from Olas del Rey and the Fascist officers said the rout was evidence of the Socialist army's inability to withstand organized attack.

Lack of Resistance.
Lack of resistance along a 13-mile march encouraged Fascists in the hope the Madrid defense was becoming thoroughly disorganized and might soon collapse completely.

Thirty-five Socialist militiamen were killed as Madrid troops fled Cabanas de la Sacra. The Socialists had constructed elaborate trenches along the side of the road but in the rolling country, ideal for highway warfare, it was apparent the experienced Fascists had the advantage.

Cobb Says: Simpson A Household Word

By IRVIN S. COBB.

Copyright, 1936, by North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.

SANTA MONICA, Cal., Oct. 18.—The simple name of Simpson has become practically a household word in America, but "his said millions of English people haven't" so much as heard it yet—or, at least, not in their public prints. It's another case of having to go away from home to hear the news.

If it's true, as exclusively reported here today, that his majesty indorse a premier and prime minister, the highest of the whole deck—to mind their own business, he set the tune for the daily press of his realm to dance by.

But some of the high arts of key-hole-peeping and transom-lifting to the extent practiced by a certain peculiar school of American journalism. With them, an Englishman's house still is his castle, though it be a glass house. Or even a royal palace.

JAPAN ADVISES LEAGUE ISLANDS NOT FORTIFIED

Report Made in Face of Impending Inquiry by Geneva.

GENEVA, Oct. 18.—(UP)—Japan has withdrawn all her naval forces from the former German islands in the Pacific ocean over which she holds a League of Nations mandate and has "no fortifications, military or naval bases" in these islands, the Tokyo government informed the League today.

The move was interpreted as a friendly gesture towards the United States and Great Britain as it comes at a time when Washington, London and Tokyo are considering renewal of Article 19 of the Washington treaty of 1922 which binds the three nations not to fortify their Pacific island possessions.

The notification was contained in Japan's annual report to the League on her mandate over the former German possessions.

The report emphasized that the Tokyo government scrupulously is maintaining that part of the mandate which forbids using the islands for military purposes.

The islands are strategically important in that they lie across American sea and air routes to the Orient. Following establishment of a South seas bureau in April, 1932, all Japanese armed forces and men of war have been withdrawn gradually from the islands, the report said, adding that the natives of the islands never have been subjected to military training.

Anticipating efforts of the League's mandate commission to verify rumors that air and submarine bases have been established in the islands, the report throughout stressed the peaceful nature of Japan's development of the islands and explained that development of harbors has been carried on merely to facilitate commerce. The islands export copra, sugar and other products and have an extensive trade with Japan proper.

The report said that 58 foreigners, including seven Americans, visited the islands during 1935.

INQUIRY IN DROWNING WILL BE CONTINUED

"If my luv-k don't change, it's the river for me."

She declared she had related these facts to Horace Jordan, operator of a boarding house at 9 Baltimore block, Jordan told the coroner Saturday no one had seen her leave his house Wednesday.

Testimony that Mrs. Helton "had spells" was given by Mrs. Brantley, Jordan, and Fern Gold, of 68 Mills street, N. W. Fred Tucker, of 63 Baker street, N. W., said he was a friend of the dead woman and had given her money but declared he had not seen her during the last week.

Coroner Doneho developed in the hearing that Mrs. Helton's body was discovered by fishermen in the river four miles below Baker's Ferry bridge and brought out that unless some one took Mrs. Helton to a point near the river in a car, she either would have had to walk nearly 10 miles from the Walker-West View car line, or to have entered the river at Bolton bridge, which is more than eight miles from the point where her body was discovered hanging on a snag.

No funeral arrangements have been made as yet. The inquest was held at the chapel of Harry G. Poole, who will announce arrangements.

2 GEORGIANS BOARD YACHT WITH PARTY

Notable Northerners To Sail From Savannah Today for Sea Island.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Oct. 18.—(AP)—Yankees and southerners will become shipmates tomorrow morning as a party of six, including two Georgians, sails from a wharf at the foot of Barnard street for Sea Island on the yacht of C. S. Kelly Jr., Boston textile manufacturer.

The Yankees arrived today on the eighty-foot yacht Nancy II. Besides the owner, those aboard were Dr. R. W. French, prominent Massachusetts surgeon and associate of Dr. Philemon E. Trusdale of "upside down" stomach operation fame; Russell H. Leonard, Boston textile manufacturer; and Dr. Karl Reiland, who recently retired after years of service as rector of St. Grace's Episcopal church in New York.

Joining the party here were Arthur Lucas, Atlanta and Savannah theater magnate, and W. J. Vereen, Moultrie textile manufacturer. They are old friends of the northern visitors, having gathered several times a year.

JUDGE GEORGE GOBER PASSES IN MARIETTA

county board of education and a county school commissioner.

Opened Marietta Library.

In the late 70's and the early 80's he was president of the Young Men's Literary Association of Marietta, and under his leadership was opened the first free library in Marietta. Later, when Miss Sarah Freeman Clarke offered her own library to be consolidated with the Marietta lending library, he was one of the committee that raised money for the building, erected on Church street. Miss Clarke named herself, two members of her family and Judge Gober as life trustees of the Clarke library.

Judge Gober was at one time active in lodge work, serving as junior warden of the Kennesaw lodge of Masons in 1885 and as senior warden in 1886.

Christened George Fletcher Gober, he was born in Cobb county on October 2, 1851, a son of Thomas A. Gober and his wife, Athelena Elizabeth Mayes. In June, 1881, he married Alice Blackwell, daughter of James Barnett Blackwell. Mrs. Gober died in November, 1935. A son, George F. Gober Jr., died in July, 1936, in Washington state. Surviving are his daughters, Miss Eileen Gober and Mrs. Mark Temple, both of Marietta; two grandchildren, Alice Ann and James Barnett Gober, of Takoma, Wash., and two sisters, Mrs. N. M. Mayes and Mrs. Alice Brown, of Marietta.

COLUMBIA REFUSES AIR TO G. O. P. FOR RECORDS

After the program that his firm's policy was to be violated.

At last said the program sponsors had denied they would use phonograph records or electrical transcriptions.

Columbia's Reply.

"Since Mr. Blackett has expressed the opinion that in the confusion with which Columbia handled the Saturday night broadcast—confusion which we both admit and regret—he did not get value received, we are canceling the charge for that broadcast."

A statement signed by Edward Klauber, executive vice president of the system, continued:

"We will not give time nor sell time to any other party for similar use. We intend to maintain the completely non-partisan attitude which has marked our network throughout its existence."

"Columbia has always refused to broadcast phonographic records or electrical transcriptions over its network. This is a standard network practice. We believe Mr. Blackett is mistaken when he says he knows of exceptions Columbia has made to this rule."

No Free Speech Issue.

There is no issue of free speech here. Throughout the campaign we have sold time freely to both Republicans and Democrats and allowed their speakers to say anything they pleased. We have never sought to edit any syllable of any of it on any side.

"Senator Vandenberg may quote from President Roosevelt's speeches or writings as much as he pleases. He may make any comments or criticisms he pleases. So may any speaker or any party so long as the speaker and the party refrain from dramatization or simulation which, in the case of political discussion, we believe would injure radio's usefulness to the public."

"Published inferences that our course is dictated by fear of the present national administration, or that we are dominated by the Federal Communications Commission are wholly unjustified. We have enforced our policies with respect to all parties solely because we are trying to do the best and most serviceable job of political broadcasting that we know how to do."

PUBLISHER PROTESTS G. O. P. RADIO 'DEBATE'

Phonographic 'Trick' of Vandenberg Denounced by Former Republican.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Oct. 18.—(AP)—The Democratic state committee made public tonight a protest it said John Beaver Strassburger, Norristown publisher, had sent to the Federal Communications Commission against the use of phonographic recordings of President Roosevelt's voice in a radio address by Senator Vandenberg, Republican, of Michigan.

Strassburger, a prominent Pennsylvania Republican, recently endorsed President Roosevelt for re-election.

The Democratic committee quoted Strassburger as saying in part in his protest to George Henry Payne, head of the communications commission at Washington:

"Is the Federal Communications Commission going to tolerate such abuse of radio as was perpetrated on Saturday night by Senator Vandenberg?"

"As a member of the public in whose interest personally the radio is operated, I protest vigorously against the chicanery and deception bordering on fraud on which Senator Vandenberg's interview was based."

"It was only after 400 to 500 words of the program had been uttered that a belated explanation was inserted that the public had been listening to a phonographic reproduction of the President's voice."

"No such explanation preceded or terminated the program in the places where it might normally have been looked for. Senator Vandenberg had carefully prepared his questions and alleged 'answers' in so far as possible to place the President in the adverse light of inconsistency and hypocrisy."

"This was malice—a new low in a campaign marked by misrepresentation and lack of restraint..."

BRADLEY BROKE, ILL., M'DUFFIE DISCLOSES

Lawyer Says Fugitive Gave Up on His Advice as Friend, Neighbor.

B. R. Bradley, former president of the new defunct American Bond & Share Corporation, acted on the advice of P. C. McDuffie, Atlanta attorney, in voluntarily surrendering to authorities here last week to face charges growing out of the corporation's collapse with the subsequent loss of hundreds of thousands of dollars to Atlanta and Georgia investors, it was announced yesterday by McDuffie.

"I do not now, nor have I at any time in the past, represented Ben R. Bradley or the American Bond & Share Corporation as paid attorney," said McDuffie.

"My connection with the case arose out of the fact that Mr. Bradley, a neighbor, came to my home after the collapse of the corporation, and his evident financial entanglement, and requested me to represent him.

"I stated to him that I could not accept employment, but as an act of neighborly kindness I would consider his statement in reference to the operations of the company and, after an investigation, advise him as to the employment of suitable counsel if it seemed necessary.

"At the time there was pending a hearing before the Security and Finance commission and a grand jury subpoena for certain records of the company. Mr. Bradley had not been indicted.

"A few days after this conference, Mr. Bradley left the city. Under the circumstances, I felt I had a moral duty as an attorney and officer of the court to aid in expediting the bankruptcy proceedings, as Mr. Bradley and the company were hopelessly insolvent and to delay would simply mean a greater loss to the creditors.

"I did so, and since that time, compelled by the same sense of obligation, I have, in cooperation with Mr. J. J. J. of the United States Postal Inspection Department, done what I felt was right and proper and in the interest of justice.

"Acting on my advice, Mr. Bradley voluntarily surrendered. He is without funds, in urgent need of a major operation and it is in his and the public's interest that he be permitted at an early date to carry out his declared intention regarding the several indictments now pending against him.

"I did not know Mr. Robert E. Lee or represent him, but when he stated to me in open court that he had no one to speak in his behalf, I pleaded for mercy.

"I knew Mr. Bradley and his lovely family, especially his children, as neighbors, and I will do no less in his case. A man may be down, but he's never out. Attorneys have responsibilities even though they may be compensated for their services. I will continue to meet that responsibility."

FLYING SCRIBE IN U. S.; TAKES OFF FOR EAST

Ekins on Last Lap While Rivals Await Clipper at Manila.

UNION AIR TERMINAL, BUREAU, Cal., Oct. 18.—(AP)—H. R. Ekins, "flying reporter" for the Scripps-Howard newspapers, started the last leg of his record-breaking around-the-world flight at 4:40 p. m. (6:40 Atlantic time) today in a TWA transport plane, bound for New York. The blimp-nosed TWA Sky Chief soared into sunny skies less than two hours after a rainstorm had slowed Ekins' progress on a shuttle flight southward from San Francisco. Stormy weather over Tehachapi pass caused him to miss the "Advanced Sky Chief" plane he originally planned to catch for his New York hop.

The globe-trotting reporter departed from the Pan-American Airways Hawaii Clipper in San Francisco this morning, after a flight from Honolulu.

On arrival here he was hustled to a telephone where he told briefly of his trip.

"Nothing to it," he said. "It's just like going places in a taxi. You get in. You sit down, and when you get there you get out again."

"I had no unusual experiences. It wasn't a stunt flight. My itinerary could be followed by any tourist and with no need of official connections. All you'd need is a ticket."

The delay will add an hour and 54 minutes to Ekins' elapsed time making his time for the flight of 25,000 miles around the world approximately 18 days 11 hours and 56 minutes.

Ekins flew over ordinary commercial air routes operated for profit.

His rivals—Dorothy Kilgallen and Kieran—were delayed in Manila here, in with Mr. J. J. J. of the United States Postal Inspection Department, done what I felt was right and proper and in the interest of justice.

"I did not know Mr. Robert E. Lee or represent him, but when he stated to me in open court that he had no one to speak in his behalf, I pleaded for mercy.

"I knew Mr. Bradley and his lovely family, especially his children, as neighbors, and I will do no less in his case. A man may be down, but he's never out. Attorneys have responsibilities even though they may be compensated for their services. I will continue to meet that responsibility."

FIGHT REOPENS TODAY OVER CITY PAY RETURN

Both Sides Are Confident Council Will Approve Their Stand.

Another city council battle over the proposed diversion of $35,000 for partial reinstatement of salary cuts of city employees looms for this afternoon's session of the body. Both proponents and opponents of the measure drew last-minute plans of action over the week-end, and today's action of the council is expected to settle the pay question, at least for the time being.

Mayor-nominee William B. Harris, in a statement over the week-end, emphasized the desirability of full pay restoration as soon as possible, but called attention to the large deficit facing the city, which makes the move unwise at present, he said.

Council proponents of the measure declared they believed the required two-thirds majority to override Mayor Key's veto can be mustered when council meets today.

Previous Approval. Council, at a meeting several weeks ago, passed a pay restoration measure, but it was vetoed by Mayor Key.

During the week-end, he would support the mayor and asked fellow council members to "take a sane, dispassionate view of the city's financial condition and do the same thing."

Last night leaders of both sides expressed confidence the council would act favorably toward them.

Council will be faced with other problems when it meets this afternoon. Among them are the election of a new tax assessor to succeed the late Harry M. Perkinson; the reduction and consolidation of the council committees, and consideration of an amendment to the beer and wine curfew law providing that violators shall be subject to a fine not exceeding $100.

Tax Assessor's Office. Included among those mentioned on the tax assessor's post were J. Sid Tiller, attaché of Solicitor General John A. Boykin's office; W. N. Blankenship, attached to the tax assessor's office; L. Glenn Dewberry, superintendent of city hall; Walter S. McNeal Jr., chairman of the zoning subcommittee of the city planning commission; R. Cliff Wichter, assistant purchasing agent; M. L. Throver and R. L. Barge, real estate men; Alderman J. Charles Murphy, eleventh ward, and Will L. Hancock, member of the 1920 city bond commission.

Councilman John A. White, fourth ward, the author of the movement to reduce the number of council committees, said he was impelled to present the measure because council will have only 18 members next year, instead of the present 39. White seeks a committee of five to study his proposal. Council also will be asked to authorize the issuance of scrip for

Lily Pons, Singer, Refuses To Appear In New Movie With Nino Martini

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Oct. 18.—(AP) Speaking allegro con fuoco, in a mood furioso, Lily Pons stated her feelings today about appearing in a movie with Nino Martini.

"One opera star in a picture is enough," she said. "Martini is a singer of considerable magnitude. So is Miss Pons. Until two days ago, they traveled their separate cinema orbits. But now Hollywood developments have thrown them together."

Miss Pons is under contract to R. K. O. Radio. To that studio has come Producer Jesse Lasky, bringing with him Nino Martini who is under personal contract to Lasky. What more natural than to co-star the two world-renowned singers in a musical.

"I don't know," Miss Pons said. "Nino Martini is a great artist?" she was asked.

"That is a question I cannot answer," she replied. "What I can say is that one opera star in a picture is enough."

The fiery little Belgian was annoyed about the whole situation. She said $800,000 to meet the November and December pay rolls, Councilman Aubrey Milam announced.

160 PERSONS KILLED IN MOTOR ACCIDENTS

Alabama Leads in Week-End Deaths; New York's Per Cent Is Lower.

By The Associated Press. Automobile accidents over the week-end claimed at least 160 lives throughout the nation.

At Dayton, Ohio, six persons were killed in a grade crossing collision of an automobile and a train.

Two girls students at Wheaton college, Norton, Mass., lost their lives in a head-on crash between two cars on the Boston-Providence, R. I., highway at Dedham, Mass.

Seven deaths in upstate New York accidents were attributed to wet roads. More than 50 accidents were reported in the Syracuse area, causing three deaths.

Deputy Police Commissioner Harold Power of New York City announced that approximately 30 per cent fewer pedestrians have been killed or injured in city streets since the department started a safety drive in June, 1934.

Week-end auto deaths by states: Alabama, 3; Arkansas, 3; Arizona, 3; California, 10; Colorado, 5; Georgia, 2; Illinois, 6; Indiana, 3; Iowa, 3; Kentucky, 2; Maine, 3; Massachusetts, 6; Michigan, 12; Minnesota, 7; Mississippi, 3; Missouri, 3; Montana, 1; New Mexico, 1; New York, 8; North Carolina, 9; Ohio, 12; Oklahoma, 2; Pennsylvania, 13; South Carolina, 6; Tennessee, 5; Texas, 11; Virginia, 4; Washington, 7; Wisconsin, 3.

JAMES ROOSEVELT WOULD AID LABOR

Better Working Conditions Are Urged by President's Son.

FITCHBURG, Mass., Oct. 18.—(AP) James Roosevelt, son of the President, told an audience here today that "it is obvious that we must shorten working hours and better working conditions for men and women."

Roosevelt addressed a Democratic forum at which he was asked: "Do you feel that if the present administration is re-elected that industry and commerce will be inclined to co-operate with the principles of NRA?"

Making it clear that this was his personal opinion, Roosevelt answered: "As soon as it becomes plain that the people as a whole wish to have the problem of unemployment permanently solved, and that they see that the only way to solve it, if at all, is to get away from relief, WPA and all those emergency agencies which provide jobs for the needy; in order to do this and in order to accomplish it, it is obvious that we must have shorter working hours and better working conditions for men and women."

"I think that as soon as business, both large and small, realizes that it is what the people intend to have, then I believe that business as a whole and employers of labor will put their shoulders to the wheel and will help us solve the problem in as short a period as possible."

2 POISON VICTIMS ON VERGE OF DEATH

Korean Servant Will Face Westchester Grand Jury Tuesday.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Oct. 18.—(AP)—Two persons, a Korean houseboy is charged with poisoning her between life and death tonight, while Westchester County District Attorney Walter Ferris prepared to present the case to the grand jury Tuesday.

Hospital officials said the two, Mr. and Mrs. George Reeves, still were in critical condition in the grip of lead poisoning and "may live or may die."

Ferris said he would question tomorrow Mrs. Ida L. Churchill, wealthy 64-year-old employer of the Korean, Chang Soo Lee, 36.

He also planned to question Miss Ruth Mannix, hospital nurse, who said Lee told her the Reeves, relatives and house guests of Mrs. Churchill, "thought they were going to get her money when she died, but they die first."

Meanwhile Ferris awaited a report from authorities in St. Petersburg, Fla., whom he asked to analyze the ashes of Mrs. Churchill's husband.

Churchill, a prominent Westchester lawyer, died at the resort last winter under circumstances Ferris termed "mysterious."

The servant is in the county jail in default of $5,000 bail which Ferris said he would raise to $20,000 if Lee tried to gain his freedom.

FAIR SKIES AND COOL IS WEATHER FORECAST

Skies will continue fair over Atlanta today, and there will be no decided change in temperature, the Candler Field weather bureau reported last night.

The mercury climbed to 64 during the early afternoon yesterday and its low mark was 47, the weatherman said.

"The weather map is generally fair with no rain in sight," he said.

In preparing a hippopotamus or rhinoceros for museum exhibit, it is found that a celluloid-like material makes more realistic "skin" than the hide of the dead beast.

U. S. EXPORTS TO SPAIN SUFFER SEVERE DROP

297 Bales of Cotton Sent in August, Sept. Against 29,000 in 1935.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—(AP)—Disastrous effects of the Spanish civil war on American trade were revealed today in a special Commerce Department survey, showing a 75 per cent decline in United States exports to Spain during the first two months of the conflict.

Although commerce between the two nations had improved slightly during the first half of this year, Spain's purchases of American goods dropped abruptly in July and continued to fall as hostilities spread through August.

In that month United States shipments totaled only $474,000—a decrease of about 85 per cent over the corresponding month last year. Sales of motor trucks, buses, and lubricating oil—formerly important trade items—tumbled to a virtual zero point.

Preliminary estimates indicated that America sold virtually no munitions to either side during the first two months of the war. No exports of firearms, ammunition or cannon were recorded and sales of such quasi-war materials as auto parts and gasoline slumped to low levels.

Only 279 bales of cotton—often regarded as a war commodity—were sent to Spain during August and September, although exports in the same months of 1935 totaled 29,000 bales.

Sales of radio apparatus to Spain in August amounted to $3,430, as against $81,045 during the corresponding month last year.

America's total shipments of six leading foreign trade products during the opening two months of the revolution were estimated at $1,486,607, in comparison with $5,747,000 in the same period of 1935.

The war was held directly responsible for the decline in United States exports to Spain from $25,262,000 in 1935.

Seeks Post in State House

PAT J. AVERY SEEKS HOUSE MESSENGERSHIP

Pat J. Avery, Atlanta and Lawrenceville lawyer, has announced his candidacy for re-election as messenger of the house of representatives.

Avery has served in that capacity for two terms, being unopposed last year. The young lawyer announced as a candidate for lieutenant governor early this year but did not make the race after E. D. Rivers announced for governor, stating that his withdrawal was due to his desire to help in the Rivers campaign. He was an ardent supporter of the governor-nominee in his three gubernatorial campaigns.

The first eight months of 1935 to $21,035,000 in the same months of this year.

GARNER'S ADDRESS PLEASES G.O.P. UNIT

Republicans' Eastern Division Applaud Radio Speech at Uvalde.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—(AP)—The Republican national committee, eastern division, tonight announced "its gratification for the unique opportunity to applaud, for the first time in this campaign, a speech made by a candidate for re-election to national office on the New Deal slate."

The statement said the committee agreed with Vice President John N. Garner's statements, in a speech at Uvalde, Texas, last night, that the electorate should be asked to judge the Roosevelt administration on its record and that the one outstanding issue of the campaign is whether Mr. Roosevelt or Mr. Landon is better qualified to conduct the business of the government during the next four years.

It added: "We agree with the vice president when he says he has many friends in the Republican party and we assure him he will have more if the New Deal allows him to make more speeches."

REDS SEEK INJUNCTION. NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—(AP)—Injunctions to restrain Terre Haute, Ind., officials from any interference with scheduled speeches by Earl Browder, Communist presidential candidate, will be sought in the courts there tomorrow. Communist party headquarters said tonight.

Duke-Vols, Wave-Tarheels, Tech-Vandy Top Saturday Card

"Benny" scored Georgia Tech's touchdown against Duke last Saturday when the Dukes trampled the Techs, 19 to 6.

"Benny" used to play with Vanderbilt University. The four-year rule and the migratory rule doesn't apply to him.

The story runs thusly:
Georgia Tech scored in the third quarter. Dutch Konemann got away for a run of 13 yards. And then, all of a sudden, Harry Appleby was sighted over near the sideline. The play was going and the pass to him was good and there was no one near him.

In the press box we gave Tech credit for pulling the old "sleeper" play. But on the train going back Coach Alexander reported the play as one made on the spur of the moment.

With "Benny's" help.
"Dan McGugin used to use that word years ago," he said. "Up there at Vanderbilt. He had his boys on the watch. When one of the players saw an opportunity to lay out any one of the players who saw it simply came into the huddle and said, 'Benny.' That was the signal. We picked it up from Dan. And yesterday when the boys came into the huddle one of them said, 'Benny.' And so we threw the ball to Appleby and he caught it and scored."

It was curious that only one of the four touchdowns came through a set play. As explained herein yesterday, the first Duke touchdown came on a set play from the one-yard line. But really, the blocked kick, which was recovered and carried to the one-yard marker was the touchdown.

"Honey" Hackney's run came when he was stopped on a pass and elected to tote the football. And how he did it. The one touchdown scored from formation, excluding the blocked kick touchdown, came on a pass.

Tech's touchdown was not a formation play. That was the play "Benny" made.

THE "HONEY" BLUES.

There were 16 Tech substitutes in there Saturday when this boy "Honey" Hackney started the Techs off on the "Honey Blues," a much bluer song than "The Sugar Blues."

The substitutes tried an offensive game instead of a defensive one and had passes intercepted which helped with two Duke touchdowns.

Hackney's run of 23 yards to a touchdown, after he had tried to pass and reversed his mind and the field to run with the ball, was a bit of football artistry.

He showed everything in that one run. And there followed, hard on his heels, another touchdown on a pass. This was the play on which Fletcher Sims says he was cut down before the pass was thrown.

The subs were simply caught up in a whirl of fast football and it proved too much for them.

IN RETROSPECT.

Scrappy Edwards played magnificent football for the Engineers Saturday. With a little luck he might have been another Hackney. He was here, there, everywhere with the ball.

The losing team gets very little attention. Yet the play of Charlie Preston was equally as brilliant for Tech at center as was that of Dan Hill Jr., the red-headed sophomore center for Duke who was the hero of their line. And Middleton Fitzsimmons played himself a nice game at guard.

Now that Tech has defeated the boys can forget all thoughts of extreme grandeur and get down to work in their own league. Vanderbilt is their next foe.

SATURDAY'S GAMES.

Saturday left the boys groggy as usual.
The defeat of Pitt was national news. In the south Tech's defeat by Duke was somewhat surprising because of the Duke margin of victory.

Matty Bell put in his reserves and did not try to embarrass his old head coach, Ray Morrison, by running up the score on a Vanderbilt team which is proving one of the major disappointments of the year. The two-deep material isn't producing for Morrison.

Georgia outplayed Rice in everything but the score. Which happens now and then when a team has a great kicker. The value of good kicking isn't realized until one sees a great kicker at work.

Parker just about kicked Tech out of the game at Duke. And Charley Schuele kicked Georgia out of the ball game. The punt still is a great offensive weapon.

Tennessee needs only to develop a little offense to start going places. The tie with Alabama was very fine defensive work.

Tennessee is probably the last real opposition Duke will have. And Duke will be favored in that one. But if there is any letdown from the Tech victory. The Dukes will be in danger.

THE SOUTH WINS.

The south had three major teams in the east Saturday. And all three of them won. Auburn defeated Detroit; Colgate fell before Tulane and North Carolina took New York University.

These games are added to the victories already scored by Vanderbilt at Chicago and Duke with Colgate. Tulane remains the real surprise of the conference. The green-clad eleven was supposed to be too green this year. Yet Tulane defeated Colgate, 28 to 6. And two weeks before Duke had a difficult tie, beating Colgate, 6 to 0.

The best coaching jobs in the conference have been done by Red Dawson at Tulane; Bob Neyland at Tennessee; and Frank Thomas at Alabama.

IN DIXIE LAND.

It so happens that in all Dixie, in the major football leagues, only Duke and North Carolina are undefeated and untied.

Auburn and Alabama both have been tied but neither has been scored on. They have that honor.

In the Southeastern conference, including all games, there is not a single clean slate. L. S. U., Auburn, Tulane and Alabama are undefeated. All have been tied.

Yet in the south this year are six or seven of the strongest teams in years. There is no single section which offers as many first rate teams.

AS TO OFFICIALS.

As to officials, the game Saturday saw J. D. Thomson, the Columbus businessman, work a very fine game as referee.

I doubt if there is a better referee in the game than Thomson. He has been one of the best referees in Dixie football for three seasons. And he did a great job Saturday. There was no fault to find with his work.

Southern officiating is perhaps the best in football. But the colleges still permit officials who are too slow and who turn in poor jobs week after week, to keep going.

But this fellow J. D. Thomson can really handle a game. There is never a protest on his job of work.

What Might Have Been In Rice-Georgia Game

Hairline of Difference on Several Great Plays Went Wholly Against Bulldogs.

By Jack Troy.

Strange, indeed, are the workings of fate in football. I am thinking about Georgia's great comeback against Rice. The week before L. S. U. rocked, rattled and rolled over the same Georgia team. It was a terrific defeat. But it served only as an object lesson for the Bulldogs. It had no demoralizing effect.

Oh, yes, Georgia came out on the short end in the Rice game, two touchdowns to one. But what of that hair-line of difference between successful execution of touchdowns and the narrow failure thereof?

If that does not seem clear maybe the following will cast a bit of light on the matter.

Here's what I'm thinking of:

ALERT PLAY.

During a scoreless first period in which smart and alert play on the part of the Bulldogs kept Rice battling in its own territory, Georgia worked the ball to the twenty-yard line.

Alf Anderson, the Decatur boy, entered the game at the start of the second period. Georgia was taking no chances and kicked.

Anderson dropped the ball in the coffin corner. It was out of bounds at the Rice three.

The wind was against Charley Schuele, great Rice kicker, but he got the ball out of there on a zooming 62-yard flight and Rice defenders covered so well that Glenn Johnson was able to return only seven yards to the Georgia 42.

Anderson, Johnson and Green worked the ball well past midfield and then Anderson kicked again, Georgia continuing to play it safe.

GREAT PUNT.

Anderson's fine punt bounced around on the four-yard line. It looked as if it might hop on over the goal when Schuele grabbed it. Schuele slipped, and one knew he started to drop it. And there was what appeared to be a break for Georgia. It was at the Rice four instead of the 20.

The odds were again Schuele kicking so well again into the wind. But he stood back of his goal line and kicked off 44 yards to the 48. Glenn Johnson took it and returned nine.

Georgia started a drive. There was a loss of a yard before Green banged the line for nine. Lew Young, who played a great game, made it a first down on a quarter back play.

The ball was back at the Rice 20, which was where it was when the first quarter ended.

Georgia was penalized 15 yards for unnecessary roughness. And here is really where the hairline of difference comes in.

Anderson made a slashing drive off tackle for nine yards. He cut back over tackle for four more, and then tossed the submarine pass to Johnson for a gain of three additional yards.

This made it fourth and still nine to go because of the penalty. And Anderson, in punt formation, tried a daring play. He ran around his right end.

It took Rice by surprise and Anderson was within inches of a first down when he was knocked out of bounds by Coesprath Johnny Frankie at the Rice 21.

Supposition is, of course, but what might Georgia have done right there if a penalty had not been caused and, too, if blocking had been such as to hold off Frankie for a fraction of a second.

It would have been first down at the Rice 21, despite the 15-yard penalty. That is a hair-line difference. Later on in the same period, there was more of the same, except it was vastly more spectacular.

It was after Harry Stevens re-entered the game to kick when Schuele dropped an aerial bomb on the Georgia two and Forbes, risking life and limb, fell on it.

SCHUELE'S RETURN.

Stevens had kicked off very adroitly and Schuele had run back the punt 45 yards to the Georgia 10. Young had escorted him out of bounds. Friedman and Neese carried the ball to the two-yard line on three tries. And on the fourth try, Georgia rose up in all its might and stopped Friedman. But there was an off-side penalty. Friedman had a lease on life. And he hooked the ball over on the fifth attempt.

That was some more of the hair-

NINE UNBEATEN TEAMS IN EAST

Holy Cross, Duquesne, Villanova Head List of Leaders.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—(AP)—In spite of yesterday's "upsets" and excitement, nine of the leading eastern college football teams remained undefeated and untied today while two more had only ties to mar their records.

Such powers as Pittsburgh, Princeton, Temple and Navy were erased from the unbeaten list leaving Holy Cross, Duquesne and Villanova to head the parade with four victories apiece.

Catholic University, high-scoring team of the unbeaten array with 101 points; Fordham, Army, Georgetown, Boston University and Yale each had won three games and lost none while the records of George Washington and Wesleyan showed three victories and a tie each but no losses.

Dartmouth's Indians, beaten once, easily retained their high-scoring honors with a total of 148 points against 7 for their opponents.

Record of the leading eastern teams, as compiled by the Associated Press, follow:

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—(AP)—Hirsch Jacobs, the 32-year-old "miracle man" of the turf, today was in possession of a new American record for thoroughbred trainers. When the affable Brooklyn red-head saddled three winners at Jamaica Saturday, he boosted his number of triumphs for the year to 149, two more than the previous mark established by C. B. (Cowboy) Irwin in 1923.

ST. MARY'S TIED BY 'FRISCO, 0-0

Gael Hopes Blasted; Gas Balloons Explode; Many Hurt.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 18.—(AP)—An undetermined number of persons were hurt, some of them seriously, when scores of gas-filled rubber balloons exploded over spectators at the St. Mary's University of San Francisco football game today, spreading a sheet of flame across Kezar stadium.

Dr. J. C. Geiger, city health director, said 11 injured had been received at a nearby emergency hospital and still more were en route in ambulances.

The football game itself resulted in an upset, with the highly-rated St. Mary's Gaels held to a scoreless tie.

It ended in a miniature riot. Half an hour after the final gun spectators milled over the field, exchanging punches with policemen, and engaging each other in private fist fights.

Fighting started among the spectators after St. Mary's and San Francisco players scrambled for the ball after the game.

Roadsters rushed the goal posts where police were stationed and suddenly oficers were swinging their various sticks. One policeman was tackled and thrown heavily after he clubbed an over-zealous fan.

The game took second place to incidents during and after, but the outcome delivered a crushing blow to national championship hopes fondly held by St. Mary's.

The Gaels, conquerors of the University of California, Gonzaga and Loyola, had been rated as one of the strongest developed by Ed "Slip" Madigan since he started coaching there in 1921. The local team had lost to Santa Clara earlier in the season.

Statistically St. Mary's was highly superior, rolling up 12 first downs against two and making 150 yards from scrimmage against 13. Almost throughout the game the ball was in San Francisco territory, reaching the 2-yard line once and making various trips to the 3, 4, 12, 15 and 17-yard markers. Fumbles and incomplete passes stopped most of the drives.

The tie came on the afternoon of the Gaels' departure for New York to meet Fordham next Saturday.

Eleven Foursomes Compete in Dogfite

Eleven foursomes participated in the weekly dogfite tournament Sunday afternoon on the East Lake course. The winning foursome had a score of 127. They were S. E. Gill, George Fogg, I. C. Schults and A. G. Huston.

R. J. Kirkpatrick, J. D. Sisson, Weldon Branch and George Suggs were the next best with 128. They having 124 were J. A. Stephenson, Dr. H. W. Ridley, C. C. Folger and G. T. Freeman.

Duke Will Meet Vols; Tulane Faces Tarheels

Auburn and Georgia Clash in Annual Gridiron Struggle at Columbus Saturday.

By Ralph McGill.

Victorious in three eastern intercollegiate games last week, southern football this week will devote itself almost exclusively to home work.

North Carolina, after a one-point victory over New York University, moves into New Orleans for a game with Tulane's surprising eleven which Saturday defeated Colgate by a wide margin.

The Tarheels of Carolina are one of the two major southern teams undefeated and untied. Tulane is undefeated but was tied by Auburn. Tulane will be a slight favorite to win.

Duke, the other major team undefeated and untied, meets Tennessee at Knoxville. This game is packed with some of the well-known upset dynamite. Duke should win with a touchdown or two to spare. Yet Duke, winner over Georgia Tech by an unexpectedly wide margin, cannot afford any letdown against Bob Neyland's young team. Tennessee tied Alabama on Saturday. The team has shown plenty of resistance but little offense to date. Duke should win this one.

Those are the standout games. In the Southeastern conference Tech, defeated by Duke but still unbeaten in the conference, takes on the Vanderbilt Commodores. Ray Morrison's team has lost two successive games, to little Southwestern by two touchdowns and last week to Matty Bell's young and inexperienced S. A. U. Mustangs by two touchdowns and a field goal. Tech should win this one with a two-touchdown margin.

AUBURN FAVORED.

Georgia's Bulldogs meet their old foe Auburn in the annual game at Columbus, Ga., with Auburn's undefeated players, fresh from a victory over Detroit, expected to win by at least two touchdowns. Georgia has not failed to score on a single opponent this season but Auburn figures much stronger than the crippled Bulldogs.

Mississippi State should win from T. C. Dallas and Ole Miss is expected to win from Catholic. They were Orange Bowl opponents last New Year's.

Southern, which Saturday had the ball at the Tennessee one-yard line and four downs to go when the whistle blew to end the first half and Alabama's only real scoring effort, goes out of the conference to play Loyola of New Orleans. Alabama should win this one by a touchdown.

Josh Cody's inexperienced Florida sophomores will be up against Kentucky and the Wildcats, trying a come-back after their tremendous defeat by Tech, will take this one by two or three touchdowns.

OLD LOU HERE.

The team from Old Lou at L. S. U., will meet Arkansas, a strong team, but not strong enough to hold Old Lou closer than two touchdowns.

Maryland offers the only intercollegiate game, playing Syracuse. This one should be close with Maryland the probable victor.

South Carolina and Clemson meet in their annual contest with the developing Carolina team a slight favorite. Hunk Anderson's North Carolina state team should win from V. P. L. Washington and Lee is favored to beat Virginia, and V. M. I. should take Richmond much easier than did General Grant.

BOWL BET.

Duke remains the best Rose Bowl bet in the nation, except for an important technicality. With Pitt out of and Minnesota barred by Big Ten rules, Duke will be a sure bet to go if Duke loses no games and the Southern conference drops its ban on post-season games. But if by no means a foregone conclusion. So perhaps the Blue Devils might have to be satisfied with a national title, if they go through unbeaten.

Wallace has taken three teams to the bowl from Alabama and won twice and tied once. The boys out there would get it. Duke is a rugged team, smart and possessed of good kicking, blocking and an attack which is versatile and executed by good backs.

TURFMAN DIES.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 18.—(AP)—John Fay, 66, retired, and one of the old-time turfmen, died today in a hospital, victim of pneumonia.

HOWARD WINS IN HAM SHOOT

By Clint Davis.

Continuing his spectacular skeet shooting of the past few months, W. S. Howard, Jr., posted a 50 straight to win top honors and a ham at the West End Gun Club yesterday.

Young Schley Howard, son of the well-known Atlanta barrister, has local skeet circles humming since his excellent showing in winning the recent 500-yard marathon at the Capitol Gun Club. In addition to this he holds the present city championship, and prospects are excellent for his adding additional titles to his name.

Lyman Smith finished second in Class A with the score of 47. Emmett Harkins and his son Harry finished in a tie for the ham in Class B with the scores of 48 and 50 each. This tie will be settled in a special shoot-off next Sunday.

 Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Your name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

DEAR MISS CHATFIELD:

I have the usual sob-story. I am in the army, don't make much money and for this reason I haven't brought my wife to live with me. Now I am being transferred to a far-away state and won't be able to see her but once a year. I have talked matters over with her and she insists on going with me. Says she knows she can get along somehow on what I make. I want to take her the worst in the world, yet I don't think it would work. There will be no entertainment for her but army sports. We have barely enough money to furnish a little home. I know how it would hurt me to see her doing without the things she has been accustomed to. What is your opinion? A worried soldier waits for it. B. B.

ANSWER:

By all means let her go with you, soldier. Why did you get married if you didn't expect to take your wife along with you when you went to the army? Why do you imagine that she will be dependent upon amusements beyond those that come in the ordinary course of her life with her husband? Why shouldn't she be satisfied with what you can give her, making a home for you and being there when you are free to join her? Your talk about the pain you would suffer at seeing her deprived of luxuries sounds fine but what about the pain she will suffer at being separated from you for such a long period and your pain, too, if you love her. Your marriage certificate won't be worth more than your last year's burglary insurance policy if your marriage resolves itself into an annual reunion with your wife.

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.
 DEAR MISS CHATFIELD:
 Everybody tells us girls the same:

Petting and necking are common, the boys look down on petters and neckers, the boys don't marry them. But we know that girls who don't partake of this sport are not dated much and they are wall-flowers at the dances. Everybody says: "Have a good time while you are young." That's what we want to do but the boys have their own ideas of what a good time is and it is mostly what we are used to. Please tell us the way around.

FIVE-IN-A-CROWD.

ANSWER:

It all depends on what you want, girls. If you are satisfied with Tom, Dick and Harry to date you and dance with you, swap notes with the other boys on the quality of your necking, etc., you can have a merry fling for a while but in the long run you will lose out. Human nature doesn't change and there never was and never will be a man who enjoys the thought that his wife was once known as a hot number.

It is a big temptation to a girl to let down her guard when the boys call her a flat-tire and a stick-in-the-mud. The boys know this, that's why they tease her. It's their game. But when they win they usually pass on to another game with another girl.

In the old days of the open saloons there were always free lunch counters where the customers could eat their fill, free, while they waited for the drinks they paid for. Results: the riff-raff barged in, bought a few glasses of beer and ate a dollar's worth of food, barged out and on to the next bar. Petters and neckers attract the riff-raff, too.

NANCY PAGE

Here's a Grand Idea for a Christmas Gift for a Baby
 By FLORENCE La GANKE.

"Did you ever see a child who looked more pink and white than this young man? His curly hair is so blond it is almost white and he has the kind of skin you love to touch. Talk about a schoolgirl's complexion. It isn't in it with this young man's."

The bridge club was breaking into their meeting to admire the young man who was being shown off up in his nursery. One of the club members picked up "a perfectly darling," as she expressed it, pincushion. "I think this is one of the nicest baby pin cushions I ever have seen. What is the filling?" "Lamb's wool. It does not mat down the way cotton does, nor are the pins quite as apt to rust when stuck into it since there is a certain amount of natural oil still left in the wool." "A cushion like this ought to be easy to make, is it?"

"Easy as pudding and pie. It's nothing but plain knitting. I used the finest bone needles and three-ply fine baby wool. The one I copied this from was made of black, white, blue and pink yarn. But I made Richard's of pink and white. He is such a blond baby that the pink and white seemed to fit him. Start with pink yarn. Cast on 40 stitches or enough to make a strip that will be 3-1/2 inches wide or long. Turn and knit back; turn and knit back. Do this eight times all told, then join the white yarn and knit two rows. Start with pink and knit eight rows. Knit two white. Repeat until you have 12 sets of pink rows with the white narrow strip in between. By this time the strip measures 9-1/2 inches in length. Bind off loosely. Using a baseball stitch, join the ends of the strip. This gives you a tube 3-1/2 inches in length. Gather the strip together at one end. Fasten tightly. Gather the other end loosely and keep open until the tube is stuffed with wool. Gather the thread tightly and fasten securely. You now have a little cushion, flat at two ends and round like a small tomato. Cut a small piece of cardboard one inch wide. Wind the yarn around this about 20 times. Slip out the cardboard and fasten yarns through middle tightly. Cut loops to make a flat tassel. Make another and fasten these down into the places where tube was gathered. For the pin cushion use any color arrangement desired. For instance, eight rows of white, two of black, eight of pink, eight of blue, two of black. Repeat this whole arrangement four times, having 12 stripes of color wrap in between, separating color. (Copyright, 1936, for The Constitution)

Negro Turns 'Banker' To Halt Shooting 'Client'

MIAMI, Fla., Oct. 18. (AP)—Shot in the leg, L. B. Fagins, 20-year-old negro, gleefully said, "Gosh, but I'm lucky!" To skeptical police, Fagins explained he was "lucky enough to borrow 25 cents so that man wouldn't shoot me any more." "A friend," he said, emphasized his insistence upon wanting to borrow some money by shooting Fagins and threatened to finish the job if the cash was not forthcoming. Unmindful then, Fagins wound a leg. Fagins hastily loaned someone with a quarter to loan, returned to his room and paid the gunman not to shoot him more.

TUBERCULIN TESTS MADE IN COLLEGES

Association Sponsors Campaigns During This and Next Month.

Intensive tuberculosis testing campaigns are being conducted in Atlanta colleges and universities this month and will continue through November, Dr. E. A. Banker, chairman of the medical staff of the Atlanta Tuberculosis Association, announced yesterday.
 Miss Marie Jann, of the National Tuberculosis Association, New York, recently addressed a meeting of the directors of the Atlanta and Georgia associations, stressing the importance of education in the fight against tuberculosis and urging the use of tuberculin testing and X-ray in the diagnosis of the disease.
 A film, "Behind the Shadows," is being shown throughout the city and state by the association in connection with the educational feature of the tuberculosis testing campaign, Dr. Banker said.

Still and Moonshiner Linked by Beaten Path

Sooner or later, Watson, they make the fatal mistake, no matter how painstaking they may be.
 Jessie Durham, who has outwitted prohibition agents and their successors of the Federal Alcohol Tax Unit for some years over in Spalding county, has found this out.
 The still was a half-mile from Durham's home and the 150 gallons of liquor were 150 yards away from his home, but a jury in United States district court retired for 15 minutes and found him guilty of violating the liquor laws.
 The "fatal error" was a trail through the woods that led from Durham's backdoor to the still, a half-mile away. The jury considered this evidence circumstantial, but convincing.
 "He is one of the biggest operators in north Georgia," Assistant United States Attorney I. K. Hay told the judge and the jury. "But we have never been able to connect him with the liquor. This time we have him."
 Durham was captured by Alcohol Tax Agents C. B. McQuinn, F. B. Clarke, E. E. Griffith and H. L. Brown. Judge E. Marvin Underwood announced that he would pass sentence later.

LIBELED LADY

By WALLACE SULLIVAN

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE. Bill Chandler, libel man on the Evening Star, is called by Warren Haggerty, who had fired him, when the paper draws a $5,000,000 damage suit by Connie Allenbury, to frame Connie so she can be sued for husband-stealing—the offense she was charged with in the libelous story. Chandler is not married and needs a wife to sue for alienation of affection. Haggerty reveals to his fiancée, Gladys Benton, to marry Bill and then get a divorce after Connie's suit has been withdrawn or quashed. Bill goes to England, contrives to render a service to her as she boards the boat for home and to get them to have dinner with him. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

INSTALLMENT V.

"I know that was coming! The sparkle of a diamond, or perhaps the blue of a turquoise!"

"Neither—they remind me of angry marbles!" He was giving her one of his fondest looks when a hand reached out from a table and grasped Connie's arm.

"Connie, my dear!" exclaimed the exclamatory Mrs. Van Arsdale. "You got away from us for dinner tonight, but I'm expecting you tomorrow."

Connie was trapped. "But I'm afraid—" she uttered lamely, stopped. Chandler rushed into the breach with his quick thinking.

"Awwfully kind of you, Mrs. Van Arsdale, but we couldn't possibly work on our book without Connie. She's our inspiration."

Connie, amazed at his effrontery, let him take her in his arms again and dance away.

"I thought I was rather clever," beamed Chandler.

"Yes, I thought you thought so."

"Don't I get a vote of thanks?"

"Oh, by all means. I love being your inspiration."

When he at length succeeded in breaking away from his uninvited guests, the disgruntled Bill had dinner by himself, went up on deck an hour or so later, and there found Connie in a deck chair enjoying the moonlight. He was embarrassed but quickly recovered his aplomb.

"The ubiquitous Mr. Chandler!" said Connie with an amused air. How was the cocktail party?"

"Delightful—just right! Charming people, the Van Arsdales. I was very glad you didn't come."

"Oh, were you?" Surprise tinged with resentment colored her voice.

"Yes, I admit my plan was to get you there alone—and you know it!"

"Ah, you are a mind-reader! . . . So am I. . . I saw your room at 7 o'clock, just as though I were in it, shades drawn, subdued lights—"

"Practically semi-darkness," concurred Bill. "Gypsy music—"

"The wine was drugged, of course."

"Not a bit of drugged wine on the boat. I shopped every place."

"You mean you were going to depend on your sheer personality?"

"Strange as it may seem, I didn't try to get you to my stateroom for the reason you think. I know I drove you to your cabin for three days. I wanted to know why. I've had my face stamped, been told choice four-word names, but up to now I'd never lost out to a circulating library. I was curious to know the reason."

"And now you know?"

"Now I don't care. I ceased caring two hours ago. I'm truly grateful to you for not falling in with my plan."

"Not a bit of change of heart?"

"You're to fragile."

She sat up, amazed, on the defensive.

"Fragile? Damage too easily."

"It fascinates me," mused Bill. "Sues for five million dollars . . . asks damages for five million dollars . . ."

"Oh, so the Van Arsdales told you."

"In passing . . . And a reputation worth five million dollars is a little too precious. In fact, I think any girl who puts that valuation on her reputation should be kept in a glass house."

Connie got quickly to her feet with a surprised "Mr. Chandler!"

Bill drew hastily aside. "Sorry—I'd rather not get too near you."

She looked at him for a moment in sheer amazement, clouded by a new and growing interest. Then she turned on her heel and walked away.

Bill's eyes followed her, the corner of his mouth twisted into a smile of satisfied superiority.

Chandler smiled at his hotel apartment, where he had left his two-hour bride, to find Warren Haggerty awaiting him and demanding an explanation.

"First you wire us that everything's jake . . . she's coming to your cabin for cocktails; then we get another wire saying everything's off. What happened?"

"The wonder boy laid an egg!" cooed Gladys.

"She never stirred from her cabin for three days," explained Chandler, ignoring Gladys' wisecrack. "Then when I had everything arranged for her to come to my room for cocktails she didn't show."

"What is this fatal fascination you have for women?" simpered Gladys. "For two weeks I've been planning my big scene—giving myself to art, just sitting here alone, in solitary confinement. I even had my ticket to Reno, hotel reservation and a lawyer engaged and for what?"

"It's a million to one, you'll never see those people again," said Haggerty dejectedly.

"I'm seeing old man Allenbury tomorrow. I'm leaving town with him for his lodge in the Adirondacks—a week-end of fishing."

"Why, that fine, Bill! Great! Is Connie?"

"No, she won't be with us, but it's a perfect plan. After a week end with him there it's a cinch to draw an invitation to his Long Island manor."

"Perfect!" jubilated Haggerty. "It's an even better set-up than the boat. Don't you think so, Gladys?"

"As a Romeo I still insist that guy's a washout!"

"Will you close up, Gladys? Bill's done good work. But up to a minute ago I was plenty worried."

"Where you stop worrying, I begin."

"I'm going trout fishing tomorrow and I've never held a rod in my hand. I told Allenbury fish tales that would curl your hair—enthralled, fascinated him. Now I've got to deliver or he'll know I'm a liar. And then he'll begin to wonder why I lied."

"That's not so good," hemmed Haggerty, then snapped his fingers. "I'll have a fishing coach here in the morning. He'll teach you to cast the boat."

"In the morning? Him? Here? He demanded Gladys. "Where am I supposed to go?"

"You stay here of course. Remember, you're married."

"If I could only forget it!" Bill started for the bedroom and she demanded indignantly: "Hey! Where are you going?"

"To make up my bed—here in the living room. He went into the bedroom and Gladys appealed desperately to Haggerty.

"Why can't you stay here? There's two beds."

"The three of us? Be reasonable! Would you look married?"

"You mean you're willing to leave me, your fiancée, here alone with that guy?"

Continued Tomorrow.

MANNERS OF THE MOMENT

"Yoo-hoo. Hello there, Janey!"

We have a collegiate reader who tells us that one of her greatest sorrows is that she is always meeting her college friends in off-campus restaurants when she herself is on a date. And these hearty friends always insist on shouting her name out across the room in such clear tones, that she feels like Mr. Rinehart must in Harvard years. Anyhow, she says, it's a awfully hard on her dates, because they begin to think that she's a public character. Most young men should not be banded about in public places, anyhow. And when someone shouts, "Yoo-hoo, Janey," at her, the Babylonian soldier has been made stupid by drinking wine, and the city was won with little fighting.

King Belshazzar was slain when the city was taken, and Cyrus added Babylonia to his empire. Soon afterward he gave word to the Jews that they were free, and could go back to Jerusalem. That brought the end of the Babylonian Captivity, which is described in the Bible. The deed has been looked upon as one of kindness, and has led many persons to honor the name of Cyrus the Great.

Persopolis, the olden capital of Persia, was located about 125 miles from the northern side of the Persian gulf. Some way it was founded by Cyrus, but that is not certain. It contained large palaces, and the palace ruins are to be seen at the present time.

It has been said that "those who raise the sword shall perish by the sword." This proved true in the case of Cyrus the Great. He built up a large and mighty empire, but at length was killed on the battlefield. In ancient days, kings and generals took part more often in the actual fighting of war than they do in modern times.

Poems by Pauline Bivings Mitchell Are Heralded With Wide Acclaim

By Sally Forth.

ATLANTA'S literary firmament is adorned with numerous stars of various magnitude, but it is not so crowded that the appearance of a new one—especially a very brilliant one—is not greeted with distinct applause. Such an ovation is accorded Pauline Bivings Mitchell, whose entrance into the world of letters is effected—very creditably, too—by a collection of lovely poems fresh from her pen.

It was Sally's pleasure to hear Mrs. Mitchell read some of her poems before members of the Atlanta Writers' Club assembled for dinner recently. Her debut, so to speak, was arranged at the invitation of Dr. W. F. Melton, president of the club. Indeed it is Dr. Melton who claims the credit for "discovering" Mrs. Mitchell—that is to say her poetic ability. For she is already known as a charming hostess, a devoted wife and mother, and a friend par excellence. In private life she is Mrs. C. Robert Mitchell.

Poetry is a new venture for Mrs. Mitchell, for she has never felt the urge to put her poetic thoughts into words until last February. It came as such a pleasant, easy diversion that she soon fell into the habit of composing verses, tender, fragile verses, that bespeak something of the soft voice and the gentle personality of the author.

Mrs. Mitchell read her poems in two groups, opening with a gem that she called "Invitation." She continued, weaving her poetic utterances around such abstract subjects as "Inadequacy," "Happiness," "Plan," "Fulfillment," "Conqueror," and "Memory." Occasionally her thoughts take a humorous turn and she ends her imaginings with a burst of wit, as in "Last Rites" and "At Sunset," which she included in the first group.

The second group was composed entirely of poems that posed entirely of their beauty and appeal, they will be included in the Sidney Lanier Memorial volume of Tree Poems scheduled to come from the press in December. Mrs. Mitchell paints charming word pictures of the trees she loves, and claims as her friends. For instance, she describes a lone pine:

"Prim splinter of the plain you stand,
Outstretched no slender, wavin,
hand
For soft caress of wandering breeze."

And how well she knows the palm tree is illustrated in her adequate description:

"Your beauty is as the sharp, loud striking of a single cord.
Without prelude or sweet after-tones."

Do you wonder that Dr. Melton feels great pride in having discovered such poetic genius? Sally awaits with anticipation the first volume of poems to be published by Pauline Bivings Mitchell.

THANKS to chatty friends in Chattanooga, the news drifts Atlanta-wards that Dr. and Mrs. Joel J. McCook are attractive acquisitions to the younger society set at Signal Mountain. As the former Idolene Lewman, Mrs. McCook made her debut in Atlanta society several years ago. She is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Lewman, and during her enrollment at Oglethorpe University she wrote two college plays which were produced in Atlanta theaters and gifted Mrs. McCook took leading roles. She has traveled extensively and spent two years in schools in Belgium and Paris and converses fluently in French.

Dr. McCook is a graduate of Southern Methodist University at Dallas, where he was a member of the Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity, and a graduate of Tulane University medical school, being a member of the A. K. K. medical fraternity. Dr. and Mrs. McCook are ardent golf players and are experienced horseback riders.

Dr. and Mrs. McCook visited here several years ago and provided inspiration for social affairs given in their honor. Their friends are delighted to know of their close proximity to Atlanta, because Chattanooga is only a few hours drive by motor or train, and Dr. and Mrs. McCook will visit here frequently during the autumn and winter.

Mrs. Charlotte Thues returned yesterday to her home in Atlanta after a visit with her mother, Mrs. William E. Hawkins.

Miss Russell Stallard and Miss St. Julianne Pringle left Friday for a visit to New York.

Mrs. S. C. Calhoun and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Foulkner will leave today for a Caribbean cruise.

Mrs. Frederick Bull and Robert Newcomb will return today from Highlands, N. C., accompanied by Miss Natalie Hammond who spent the past months at her summer home.

E. Ralph Paris is in New York.

Miss Anna Belle Hancock has returned from a visit to Lynchburg, Virginia.

Mrs. Robert Cunningham and Mrs. Harry Craft will leave tomorrow for Columbia, S. C., for a week's visit.

Miss Marian Walker, daughter of Mr. Ralph M. Walker, of 1272 Fairview, N. W., is a student at Converse College in Spartanburg, S. C., and recently has been elected to associate membership in the Palmetto Players.

Miss Claire O'Connell has given up her apartment and will be at a local hotel for the winter.

Miss Milholland Is Given Party.

Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Milholland entertained the Grant Park Baptist choir recently celebrating the birthday of their daughter, Doris Milholland.

Games were enjoyed and a surprise handkerchief shower was given. Present were: Misses Evelyn Scott, Olive Phillips, Caroline Hinson, Frances McMillan, Annie Mary Chandler, Charlotte Fountain, Elizabeth Bearden, Billie Tipton, Rachael Harrison, Clyde Thomas, Doris Milholland, Mesdames J. B. Richardson, R. A. Barr, George Ivey, R. E. Ragan, Inez Shelton, L. V. Chandler, C. S. Milholland, Joe Johnston, Johnny Bishop, Wallace Scott, Roy Jones, L. V. Chandler and G. R. Hathaway.

Birthday Party.

Mrs. J. C. Aldred and Mrs. Marvin Pixon were hostesses recently at a supper at the home of Mrs. Aldred in honor of the birthday of Mrs. Clifford Statham. The supper was in the nature of a surprise and assembled 20 close friends of the honor guest.

Matrons, Patrons.

Past Matrons and Patrons' Association meets Wednesday evening. The ways and means committee is requested to come at 7:15 instead of 7:30 o'clock for a called meeting. J. C. Gore is president.

Lauds Constitution Garden School

Mrs. Fleming Law, president of the Rose Garden Club, is loud in her praise of The Constitution's semi-annual garden school which opens for a three-day session at the Atlanta Woman's Club on October 27. Mrs. Law, who is an authority on horticulture, says of the school: "The Constitution is doing a great work, both civic and educational, in presenting its semi-annual garden school. There is no finer authority on her subject than Mrs. Fletcher Pearson Crown, who will conduct the school. I strongly urge every person interested in horticultural development to attend."

Miss Memminger Is Honored At Series of Prenuptial Parties

Miss Elinor Memminger, popular bride-elect, whose marriage to Karl Gorham, of New York, will be a social event of October 27, will be honored at a series of delightful prenuptial parties. On Wednesday Mrs. Thomas Morgan and Mrs. Edward S. Lewis entertained at luncheon at the Piedmont Driving Club in her honor. Miss Louise Bode gives a steak fry on Thursday and on Friday Miss Mimi O'Brien entertains at a bridge party at her home on Wesley road. Miss Memminger will be central figure on Saturday at the bridge party at which Miss Eugenia Patterson entertains.

On Sunday Miss Murchie Walker, Perryman Little and Skip Conyers entertain at a party at the country home of Mr. Little, commenting Miss Memminger, and on Monday evening following the wedding rehearsal Mr. and Mrs. Hoke Smith Simpson have been connected with the wedding at a buffet supper at the Piedmont Driving Club.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith Keep Open House

An informal affair of yesterday afternoon was the "open house" at which Mr. and Mrs. Claude Green Smith entertained at their home on Myrtle street in celebration of their first anniversary. Mrs. Smith is the former Miss Frances Knott.

Assisting in entertaining were Mr. and Mrs. George E. Knott, parents of the bride, and Miss Virginia Knott, Sara Knott and Elma Smith. Mrs. Smith was beautifully gowned in a purple velvet and shoulder bouquet of gardenias.

The table in the dining room was covered with a real lace cloth and was centered with a crystal bowl filled with white roses and snapdragons. On either end were crystal candlesticks holding burning tapers. Throughout the home quantities of flowers and greenery were used as the decorations.

SOCIETY EVENTS

MONDAY, OCTOBER 19.

Mr. and Mrs. William Pauley entertain at a buffet supper commencing 7:30 o'clock. Miss Katherine Linder and her fiancé, Elbridge Freeborn, following the wedding rehearsal.

E. Rivers P. T. A. membership invites the public to the party, where prizes will be enjoyed and many prizes given.

FALL GARDEN NOTES

Fletcher Pearson Crown

Some of these high-off-the-ground shrubs are in bloom. So if you are planning to plant in this foundation planting we find that in order not to accent the already great width of our home, we do not place any shrubs beyond the corners of our home. In fact we do as the fat ladies do, we accent the middle planting. In this way we break the width and also give a feeling of welcome by having attractive shrubs planted at the entrance. Since your home is up off the ground we cannot use prostrate shrubs. We have such a wealth of both kinds that it becomes a matter of personal taste. It is well to know that our coniferous evergreens do not thrive in the shade. The one exception to this is the hemlock. But we could not use a hemlock in a foundation planting because it eventually grows into a tree, hence future size rules it out. Put that into your notebook. FUTURE SIZE. At this stage entrance in front of high-up house you can use boxwood if price does not have to be considered. You can still use boxwood and be economical also if you are not sure which is too expensive. If you do not find it too well this shrub grows slowly enough not to need much shearing and shaping. Get a plant that is big enough to see after it has been planted, four or five feet tall. Another nice broadleaf evergreen that is no less lovely because it is much used, is the lucidum ligustrum.
